

CANDIDATE MATCHING

Now that you've found a job that matches your skills and interests, there are a few steps that may follow. In this phase of the process, activity will be initiated by PNC. Some jobs require an assessment that measures certain skills and abilities that don't necessarily come through on your resume or in an interview. You'll be notified if you need to complete an assessment as part of the screening process.

During candidate matching, recruiters review resumes and contact those who may be a fit for the job. Through this phone screening, you can share more information about yourself and ask questions about the opportunity. If contacted by a recruiter, you may also receive our employment application through email.
